Alexandria Gazette.

FRIDAY EVENING, APRIL 3, 1903.

Birds That Make Queer Noises. The belibird, or campanere, which is found in South America and also in Africa, can be heard at a distance of three miles. Its note is like the tolling of a distant church bell and is uttered during the heat of the day, when every other bird has ceased to sing and nature is bushed and silent. How the beilbird utters this deep, loud note is not known, though it is supposed that a fleshy protuberance on its head, which when inflated with air stands up like a horn, is in some way the cause of it.

The hornbill, a bird which is widely distributed in India, the Malay archi-pelago and Africa, has also a very loud note. Its call has been described as between the shriek of a locomotive and the bray of a donkey and can be heard a distance of about a couple of miles. The barking bird also utters a very loud note; indeed, it is impossible to distinguish it from the bark of a dog. Its English name, says Darwin, is well given, for I defy any one at first to feel certain that a small dog is not yelping somewhere in the forest. The toucan has also the same peculiarity.

The Welsh Language.

The quite erroneous idea that Welsh is a language of consonants probably arises from the number of w's it contains, according to a Welshman in the London News. "W" in Welsh is generally—and always between two erally-and always between two consonants—a pure vowel, sounded like "oo" in English. Thus "cwm" is pronounced "koom," rhyming with "boom." What is really one of the most remarkable features about the Weish language is the number of vowels which can come together. In English three vowcome together. In English three vow-els in succession are not often met with. In Welsh it is not uncommon to find four or five—e. g., in "llywiawdwr" (governor). Here each of the five vow-els "ywlaw" is pronounced separately in rapid succession. Here are four lines, consisting entirely of vowels, made by Goronwy Owen in the eighteenth century:

O'i wiw wy a weune, Icuau o in, ai e ly? Ai o au weuau a we A'i au i wau ei we wyw?

"If we cannot all have a plazza, every one may feel the sun," says an Italinn proverb which is characteristic of that patient, cheerful race.

But, after all, it is the exceptional life which has not in it much of the sunshine. There is always gloom for those who wish to dwell in shadow, but an effort of the will often carries one out of that morbid desire into the clearer, sunnier mood.

Difficulties and troubles, if bravely met, make strong men and women, but endless worry and anticipation of evil cannot fail to weaken the will and the character.

Laugh and be glad now, today. If you wait till you conquer your little world, you will never laugh and be glad. It is better to live in a castle in the air than in the dungeons we allow our low spirits and forebodings to build

The trajectory of a thing is the path of a built or anything else passing through the air from the gun to the place where it strikes. Generally the ord is applied only to bullets and cannon balls. In shooting at an object near at hand you aim point blank, because the bullet practically reaches the target before it falls at all, but when you fire at a distant object you must alm above it, so that the bullet may have room to fall and yet hit the object. The desire of every marksman is to get have room to fall and yet hit the object. The desire of every marksman is to get a trajectory as flat as possible, so that the bullet shall have no need of falling very far. A flat trajectory is obtained by diminishing their size and increasing the powder charge.

The Monkey's Reasoning Powers.

The monkey's intelligence has never been able to arrive at a point which enables that animal to achieve the unty-ing of a knot. You may tie a monkey with n cord fastened with the simplest form of common knot, and unless the beast can break the string or graw it beast can break the string or gnaw it in two he will never get loose. To untle the knot requires observation and reasoning power, and, though a monkey may possess both, he has neither in a sufficient degree to enable him to overcome the difficulty.

overcome the difficulty.

King Solomon and His Lady Friends.
A little girl tells what she knows about King Solomon in the following essay: "King Solomon was a man who lived ever so many years ago, and in King Solomon and His Lady Friends. about King Solomon in the following essay: "King Solomon was a man who lived ever so many years ago, and in lived ever so many years ago, and in the country in which he governed he was the whole push. King Solomon built Solomon's temple and was the father of all the Masons. He had 700 wives and 200 lady friends, and that is why there are so many Masons in the world."—Saxby's Magazine.

Craft Wins.

"How did you ever manage to get on the good side of that crusty old uncie of yours?" asked Fam.

"Fed him the things he liked when

of yours?" asked Fan.
"Fed him the things he liked when he came to visit us," replied Nan. "The good side of any man is his inside."--Chicago Tribune.

nervous tension. The nerves soon begin to give way ender the strain. You perhaps jump at any unusual disturbance, or laugh or weep, hysterically, at no apparent cause. That is what Miss Fay Lee, 603½ North Seventh Street, Kansas City, Kansas, was coming to when she rescued herself by taking Wine of Cardui. The Wine made her a strong, healthy woman mervous and hysterical and had not consulted any doctor, thinking it would pass away in time, but instead I found that the pains increased and were more frequent. I decided to try Wine of Cardui and in a short time was much improved. It seemed to act like a charm. I kept up the treatment and the result was most satisfactory. Words fail to express my gratitude for the suffering that is now saved me. I am in fine health, physically and mentally. I can only say 'thank you', but there is much more in my heart for you."

Bearing-Down pains are the worst that women know. If you are suffering from this trouble you need not be uncertain about it. The pains in the addomen and back that feel as if heavy weights were pulling down on the nerves of the stomach are "bearing-down pains". They may not be particularly severe at present but they are growing worse. That headache which nearly drives you distracted now is caused by the terrible and have found relief in have found relief in
